SPECIAL FEATURES: Methionine is one of the essential amino acids required by greyhounds. Supplies sulphur and the other compounds required for normal metabolism and growth.

Methionine is essential for the formation of “keratin” which is the major structural protein in nails, skin and hair. Methionine belongs to a group of compounds call “lipotropics”. These are chemicals that help the liver process fats and to detoxify body wastes.

Methionine also promotes the formation of acid urine and is recognized as a useful therapy to help prevent bladder infections, particularly in bitches.

Methionine plays a key role in regulating the availability of folic acid. Folic acid is a vitamin that is vital for optimum red blood cell production
